Manchester Airports Group (MAG) is the UK's largest airports group, owning and operating Manchester, London Stansted and East Midlands Airports, and a digital travel services business, CAVU.

In FY23, the Group served 54 million passengers and 261 destinations across its three airports. With catchments spanning the UK, around 70% of the population live within a two-hour journey of a MAG airport.

Together with CAVU, the Group employed over 5,800 colleagues at the end of FY23.

Now serving 28 million annual passengers

London Stansted is the first major UK airport to exceed pre-pandemic passenger levels, now serving over 28 million annual passengers from across London and the East of England.

London Stansted serves more European destinations than any other airport in the UK, offering passengers the choice they look for when booking their summer breaks, business trips or to visit friends and family. Continuing to add more long-haul routes, such as the recent return of an Emirates double daily route to Dubai, it serves as an important gateway for visitors to the capital.

Transforming London Stansted

In 2021, London Stansted was granted permission to fly 43 million passengers each year. However, the current terminal infrastructure is nearing capacity so Stansted has exciting plans to evolve and expand the terminal building over the next few years.

This will provide the space and capacity needed to ensure a great customer experience at every touchpoint, and allow for up to 7,500 passengers to pass through London Stansted's single terminal each hour.
